DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 6 to 11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 6 to 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent 5,650,024 ("Hasegawa") in view of US Patent 5,415,706 ("Scarlino") or US Patent 4,477,280 ("Shiga").

4. Hasegawa in claims 1 to 6 of columns 55-56 teaches tempered martensitic steel alloy having a composition with constituents whose wt% ranges overlap those recited by claims 6 to 11; such overlap establishes a prima facie case of obviousness because the prior art teaches similar heat and creep resistant properties. In addition, the abstract teaches welding tempered martensitic heat resistant steel to form a welded joint with a heat affected zone having high creep strength at high temperature of at least 550°C.

5. Even though Hasegawa does not teach steel containing 0.003 to 0.03% B and 0.0005 to 0.02% Al as recited by claims, such difference would not be a patentable distinction. Note it is well known and conventional practice in the metallurgical art to add small amounts of B and Al to analogous heat resistant martensitic steel alloy to further enhance mechanical properties. Scarlin on lines 3 to 12 in column 5 teaches adding 0.001 to 0.015% to improve hardenability and creep rupture strength; and Shiga on lines 24 to 30 in column 4 teaches adding 0.001 to 0.01% Al for deoxidizing. Since hardenability, creep strength and deoxidizing are desired and sought by Hasegawa, then it would be an obvious modification well within the skill of the artisan in view of secondary teaching to incorporate small amounts of B and Al to primary prior art steel alloy to produce no more than the known and expected effects from such additions.

6. Hasegawa does not teach heat affected zone of the weldment having creep strength of at least 90% or more of the base metal as recited by claim 6 but such property would be expected since compositional limitations are closely met, and in absence of proof to the contrary.

7. Moreover, Hasegawa discloses specific examples such as steel 65 in table 3-1 of column 15, steel 147 in table 6-1 of column 20 and steel 173 in table 7-1 of column 22 that meet the claimed composition except for Al and B but such elements would be obvious to incorporate in view of secondary teaching.

8. For the foregoing reasons, claims would not patentably distinguish over prior art.

Conclusion

9. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
